Crime keeps pace with soaring temperatures

A rape report submitted by a 16-year-old girl, abducted early Monday at a near-Eastside intersection, is being probed by police.

According to police, the victim said she was forced into a car at 19th and Martindale by a bearded stranger around 12 a.m. Her abductor then drove his 1966 GTO to a secluded area near 18th and Massachusetts where he sexually assaulted the teenager, police quoted her as saying.

After returning to her Southside residence, the frightened victim informed her mother who called police. The man was described as between 29 and 30, approximately 6' tall, and wearing a pair of bermuda shorts.

Victim of another criminal assault was a 42-year-old Lockfield Gardens resident who claimed she was attacked in the home of a friend while visiting. She said she had gone to the house around 8 p.m., Sunday night when beaten and forced to submit to the man's demands.

Giving a stranger a lift proved costly Saturday night for a 56-year-old Westside-

Roy Wilkins, NAACP president, plans to visit Marion

MARION, Ind.—Carlyle Guilford, president of the Marion chapter of the NAACP, said he was advised Friday that Roy Wilkins, executive director of the NAACP, plans to come to Marion within the next 10 days.

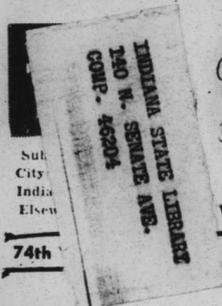

Early last week Wilkins said in a telegram to Gov. Edgar D. Whitcomb that his organization was "shocked and distressed" at reports of police brutality during disorders in Marion last week.

Guilford said he was told Wilkins would be accompanied by Robert L. Ming, an attorney of the National Legal Staff, and Midwest leaders of the NAACP to "help us in our fight to bring justice to the community."

Problems of the poor will be in focus at a giant state-wide rally Sunday, July 13, at 2:30 p.m. at

C.T.H. Watkins Park, 24th and Northwestern, sponsored by black organizations under the direction of the Indianapolis Affiliate of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

Man's foot crushed during accident at service station

Surgeons, in a frantic attempt to save his life, amputated Monday the right foot of a 34-year-old service stations attendant hours after it had been hopelessly mangled in a "freak" car accident.

Listed in satisfactory condition at St. Vincent's Hospital is Robert Flannery, 3643 N. Keystone, popular worker at Green's Shell Service Station 201 W. 38th.

The unsuspecting victim was servicing a car at the station around 11 a.m. Monday, when he noticed a vehicle swerve uncontrollably from westbound traffic on W. 38th and sped toward him.

Flannery leaped onto the bumper of the car he was servicing but his foot was crushed between it and the approaching

D.C. educator assails I.Q. tests by Jensen

GREENSBORO, N. C. — Charges of the genetic inferiority of blacks to whites is due more to misunderstanding than to facts, according to a national authority on Negro dialect.

Dr. William A. Stewart of the Education Studies Center in Washington, D. C. in Greensboro took issue with recent racial statements of Harvard University psychologist Arthur Jensen.

"Jensen's theory is due to a lack of understanding of the problems," said Stewart. "He hasn't assessed some of the more important reasons why Negroes don't do as well on standardized intelligence tests."

Stewart, who also teaches a course in Negro dialect at Columbia University, spoke to 30 college teachers attend-

Say teenage victim ignored warning shout

A second incident of racial disturbances was narrowly averted here late Wednesday evening in the aftermath of a shooting in which an 18-year-old suspected car thief was shot and fatally wounded as he attempted to flee from police.

Several large crowds of teenagers and young adults began to mass in the vicinity of 30th and Clifton around 7:30 p.m. shortly after a rookie officer with less than a year's service on the police department gunned down Donald E. Graves Jr., 2855 N. Illinois, as the youth fled down an alley.

Harmony is Evers' theme during inauguration address at Fayette

FAYETTE, Miss.—By sunset Monday, the minute community of Fayette had seared its name into the annals of history with one of the most profound displays of Democracy ever witnessed in this country.

Beneath near 100-degree skies, a slave descendant stood at the heart of the municipality and was sworn in as the town's first black mayor.

Charles Evers, perhaps the state's most dynamic NAACP

figure, in his inaugural address pledged a government geared to all the people's needs—black and white—an unprecedented type of racial harmony.

Speaking without text, he promised, "We're going to enforce the law and build our community and make it the kind of community that all of us can be proud of. We guarantee that no hate will be shown in this town. No more guns will be carried around in this town to des-trophy men just because they differ with them. If they do, they're going to pay for it."

Seeking to give assurance to Fayette's 600 whites who are outnumbered nearly two-to-one in the populace of 1,700, he said whites can be sure the law will be administered justly regardless of race.

Asserting "We're not going to do to them what they did to us," he pleaded: "Let's bury all the

Nixon administration policies blasted at NAACP convention

JACKSON, Miss.—The six-month period of grace during which the NAACP adopted a "wait-and-see" attitude towards President Richard Nixon's administration ended with a bang July 5. The bang resounded throughout the nation.

The opening salvo was restrained comment by Executive Director Roy Wilkins during a pre-convention news conference. Responding to a reporter's question, the NAACP leader expressed the Association's concern and unhappiness over a recent development within the administration.

Later Wilkins leveled a vigorous attack upon the administration's abandonment of the September 1 deadline for school desegregation.

Meanwhile dismay spread and tension mounted in the 100-degree Jackson heat as indications seeped through from Washington of administration backdowns on civil rights issues.

At no time in recent years has the White House come in for such sharp criticism as emanated from this year's NAACP convention.

The President had sent a cordial letter of felicitation to the convention in which he hailed the NAACP "as the largest and most respected of our civil rights organizations (with a very special part to play."

"I look to you for guidance and inspiration as well as for support and strength," the letter continued.

After the President's letter was read at the convention's opening mass meeting, Bishop

Stokely Carmichael quits Black Panthers

NEW YORK—The former national chairman (1966-68) of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee and lately prime minister of the Black Panther Party, Stokely Carmichael, last weekend severed his connections with Black Panthers.

His resignation by letter was announced or presented to the press here by his wife, the South African singer and former Miriam Makeba, Carmichael according to report, at the time was in Conakry, capital of the West African Republic of Guinea.

Newmen reported Mrs. Carmichael as saying she came to this country to deliver her husband's letter of resignation personally. Also to see that a copy of the letter was mailed to Black Panther headquarters in Berkeley, Calif.

Carmichael in his letter of resignation from the Black Panther party listed five reasons, in part, as follows:

"... their 'dogmatic' (Panthers) position... the need for an 'unrelenting armed struggle against the white western empire; Panther alliances with white radicals; and the direction in which the party is moving. 'The tactics 'and rhetoric of the party are dividing black revolutionaries, and causing divisions within the black community which only benefit our enemy.'"

By the way...

by Joe Black

Once upon a time, there lived a species of huge animals called dinosaurs. They were tremendous in size, physically powerful, and terrorized all other life. As you know, the dinosaur is long gone because he couldn't adapt to his changing environment. All his power, size and aggressiveness didn't help him when the chips were down. And today, aggressiveness and sheer force of power are not going to help the Black People's revolution any more than they helped the dinosaur. No power, black, white, red or yellow, can survive for long when it's based on hate and violence.

Our black youth must understand that the door to opportunity is open at last! The invitation to move in is here. But that does not mean that someone is going to give them something for nothing simply because they have black skins and can shout "black power". It does mean that before they can be accepted for what they are, they've got to show what they are. Being honest with themselves is a first step. They must never forget that they represent the blood, sweat and tears of generations past. The future is in their hands, and they cannot afford to be late or unprepared.

And so, to our black youth everywhere, I say: "Stop throwing yourselves against a door that's already open. Meet the challenge with common sense and a devotion to duty. You'll be surprised at how far you can go when you stop being angry and start being smart. Don't, for God's sake, be a dinosaur!"

Hints to apartment seekers are offered

Summer is a popular time for moving - if you need to or have to move. Consider and shop the total housing market. Indiana law protects "equal opportunity" in housing. Give yourself a break and live up to "free choice" in apartment living.

"Hints to Apartment Seekers" appear in this week's Recorder. Select a home so yours will be an All-American Neighborhood, too. Look for attractive "All-American Neighborhood" posters inside and outside Indianapolis Transit buses, a cooperative effort by the Indianapolis Human Rights Commission and the Indiana Civil Rights Commission.

The Indiana Civil Rights Commission offers a few "Hints to Apartment Seekers." Take a positive attitude toward all rental agents. They pride themselves in "sizing up" a person in the first five or ten minutes. They want to get to know you as a person through communication.

Rental agents expect questions from applicants. Your questions help promote this communication which they desire. Be sure to state the size apartment you wish: one bedroom, two bedroom, etc., and the price range you can afford. A general rule of thumb is that a month's rental should be no more than the amount of money you earn in one week. Important questions you might want answered are:

1. Does the rent include all utilities? If not, what do utilities average per month?
2. What are your credit requirements? (Credit checks are made on all applicants).
3. How much deposit is required with an application?

Pepsi-Cola executive popular public speaker

H. Naylor Fitzhugh

NEW YORK, N. Y. -- For many an executive, working weekends and traveling thousands of miles annually are the accepted requirements of a successful career. Add to this a heavy speaking schedule and you have H. Naylor Fitzhugh, Vice President, Special Markets, Pepsi Cola Company.

By his own account, Fitzhugh travels over 25,000 miles on speaking assignments each year. A former Professor of Marketing at Howard University, Fitzhugh is much in demand by university and business associations to address their seminars, annual meetings and other similar functions.

With the academic year coming to a close, he is looking forward to relaxing at his home in Yonkers, N.Y. Before he can, however, he still has many important items on his agenda.

On Saturday, May 3, he spoke at the Business Academic Homecoming at Central Michigan University in Mt. Pleasant, Mich. On May 12, Fitzhugh traveled to Detroit to address the Detroit chapter of the National Association of Marketing Developers and to address a breakfast session of the business staff of Wrigley Supermarkets on May 13.

Wrigley's is a large Detroit food chain and this meeting comes as a direct result of a speech Fitzhugh made before the chain's top management in February. His remarks so impressed management that they requested his return.

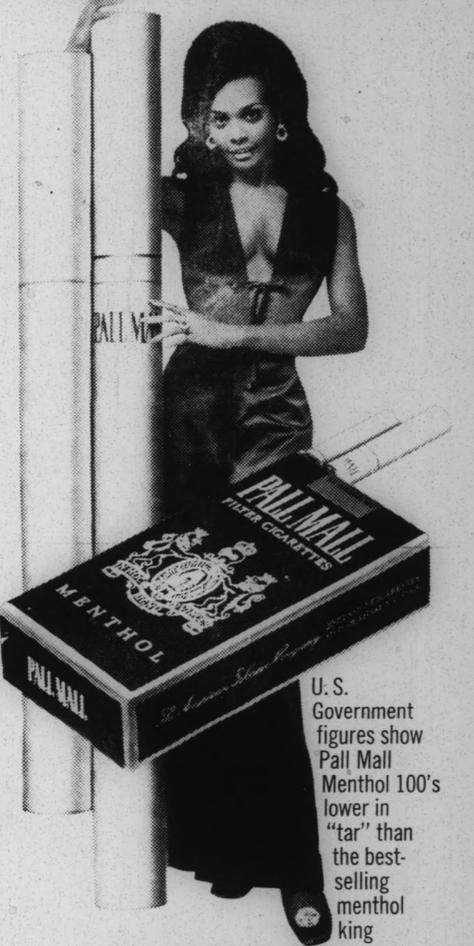

Fitzhugh generally works from two or three prepared texts, altering them to meet local situations and conditions. A favorite with audiences is "Ethnic - Minority Groups and Industrial Opportunity." Another is "Some Social Challenges Confronting Business." Fitzhugh presented this address on April 23 when he was the Keynote Speaker of a week-long seminar conducted by the University of Texas in Austin.

Called the "College of Business Administration Week," this series of discussions was designed to highlight the nation's business area and to look for solutions to social and economic problems. Fitzhugh also addressed some marketing classes at Syracuse University in April.

Fitzhugh is active in other business areas. In January, he was named National Red Cross Advertising Coordinator for the Advertising Council, Inc., and in April, he was elected Vice President-elect of the Consumer Marketing Division of the American Marketing Association.

In addition, Fitzhugh is a

'African Safari' features pretty creations purchased by Mrs. Vernice Brent

Beautiful material she purchased on her 1964 trip to Africa was aptly described by the lovely Mrs. Vernice Brent during a unique "African Safari" sponsored by the National Council of Negro Women recently at Holcomb Gardens.

In addition to seeing the bright colored creations of Mrs. Brent, guests also were delighted at viewing original African garbs owned by Mrs. Bea Moten and modeled by Council members. Delicious African food satisfied the palates of the guests attending.

It was during her trip to the African Gold Coast that Mrs. Brent brought the many-hued material which can be wrapped around a lady to make a dress and cut to make a matching hat. The hats and garbs are styled according to the section of Africa a woman comes from, according to Mrs. Brent. Most dresses wrap and are ankle-length.

Mrs. Brent owns a dress of the former president of Liberia. She received it from the president's wife who is a sorority sister of hers. The ex-president of Liberia's head is on the dress.

The popular world-traveller has a material from Nigeria, Abidjan, Dakar, Monrovia, Ghana, and Accra.

Special guests at the safari were three young men from Africa who described the various customs and dress. One gentleman danced the "High Life" to African music with the Council members who modeled exquisite Nigerian attire.

"The Lone Star Forever" was the name of the record played for the dancers. Such songs as "Oyewuyewu Ju," "High Life," "Weya-Weya" (Meringue), "Salome," "Ju Ju," and "Porrogun Ila Ju Ju" were played. The main song for the "High Life" dance is "Bonsu" Mrs. Brent noted. An outstanding African Joss Aikins, made the record. He is noted throughout Africa. Mrs. Brent secured the lively records while on her African tour.

The young men who modeled African clothes and talked of their country were Tajudeen Somade of Nigeria, Razak Shonibare of Nigeria and Oswald Addico of Ghana.

Lovely ladies who fashioned African official dress were Bea Moten, Marcus Wilson, Marguerite Ferguson, Rosemary Richmond, Mattie G. Fanning, Mamie Cole, and Karen Parker.

The menu was cleverly recorded inside a folded program which bore a colored map of Africa on its front and African pictures inside. The entire consisted of chicken a la Zambian, rice curry Congolese, Gold coast bean green, banana palm bread, cinnamon bread, and Zanzabar fruit cocktail.

Listed on the program were Mrs. Viola Easley, Mrs. A'Leilia Jo Osili, Mrs. Harriet Cheatham, chairman of the safari and Mrs. Jeanetta Greene, Council president.

Jackson, McCovey continue assault on home-run record

Reggie Jackson has stirred up the homerun buffs again. But Willie McCovey has just as good a chance to get into the record books.

While Jackson of the Oakland Athletics holds the spotlight as he pursues the records of 61 homeruns hit by Roger Maris in 1961 and 60 hit by Babe Ruth in 1927, McCovey of the San Francisco Giants is mounting a quiet assault on the National League home-run record—56 set by Hack Wilson of the Chicago Cubs in 1930.

It went unnoticed at the time, but McCovey set a National League record last week when he reached July 1 with 26 home runs. The previous high had been 24, shared by seven players, including Willie Mays, Gil Hodges, Duke Snider and Hank Aaron. Even if either or both fail

Updating hospital care

There is an imperative need for an updating of the Hill-Burton Act, the nation's basic hospital-assistance program. Unfortunately the House of Representatives missed an opportunity to take the lead in that updating a few days ago when it considered and rejected a collection of constructive amendments championed by Representatives Ottinger, Adams and Dinell.

When the Hill-Burton Act was adopted, the country suffered from a tragic shortage of rural hospital facilities. Many families living in rural areas had no facilities for life-saving care available to them. Congress remedied that imbalance and inequity, largely through Hill-Burton funds, and did it so successfully that the Under-Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare could testify recently that "Today, despite rapid population growth, 90 percent of the nation's need for general hospital beds is fulfilled."

Indeed, the situation has been in a significant sense reversed. Today, as Senator Kennedy pointed out recently, "the most important single area which new legislation is essential is the provision of greater Federal financial assistance for the construction of hospitals and other medical facilities in our major metropolitan areas." The priorities of the 1940s, in short, are not the same as the priorities of the 1970s.

Two vital developments are needed. The formula for allocation of Federal hospital aid ought to be based on population, per capita income and need. Such a formula, which the proposed amendments prescribe, would correct a long-standing inequity in the distribution of aid.

Almost equally important is a proposed amendment designed to expand other kinds of medical facilities that would reduce the pressure on hospitals and so help to cut skyrocketing medical costs. There is a crying need for community diagnostic and treatment centers to meet the health needs of low-income city-dwellers. These could do a great deal to forestall a subsequent need for hospitalization. Another proposed amendment which seems to make admirable sense would correct the allocation of funds between new construction and modernization programs to enlarge the latter and diminish the former.

Dr. Charles Mayo of the Mayo Clinic once observed that "sickness makes people poor, poverty makes people sick." The interaction is indisputable. Health facilities are needed wherever poverty is prevalent.

To curb speculation of ghetto housing

Occupants of ghetto housing often find themselves the victims of conditions beyond their control, largely brought on by the practices of speculation in slum housing. Speculation is profitable for two reasons—because government has failed to curb exploitative practices which inflate housing costs and neglect essential maintenance. A special House banking subcommittee has been investigating the situation and may propose the adoption of remedial legislation outlawing certain speculation practices. Whether new legislation will solve the problem is questionable unless greater attention is paid to enforcement that at present.

The hearings suggest that much can be done without new legislation by stricter attention to the problems of the inner city, particularly in the part of Federal financing agencies. For instance, new legislation will not be required for the Federal Home Loan Bank Board to tighten its supervision of savings and loan association, to make sure that they do not approve loans to speculators at inflated values, to insist that borrowers maintain their properties, to stop favoring absentee owners over genuine home buyers. Teeth can be put in these regulations by calling on the Justice Department to prosecute speculators who obtain loans through fraud. Similarly, the corporation counsel's office can help by prosecuting under city laws those who use straw parties to cover fictitious deals and transfers of property at inflated prices.

Tough enforcement, of course, may turn out to be self-defeating, if it only serves to keep mortgage money out of ghetto areas. The enforcement program must be accompanied by an affirmative effort to make loans available to genuine home buyers, to tenant groups and non-profit associations. This is a great opportunity for legitimate savings and loan and banking institutions to improve the conditions of life in the city's ghettos and help undo the damage done by less scrupulous competitors.

"CONSCIENCE IS THAT STILL, SMALL VOICE THAT TELLS YOU SOMEBODY MIGHT BE LOOKING!"

NIXON MAINTAINED THAT THE GREAT MAJORITY OF THE PEOPLE IN OUR CITIES ARE NOT ANTI-NEGRO, ANTIWELFARE, ANTIPOOR, OR REACTIONARY HATERS. RATHER, NIXON SAID, THEIR "LOUD AND CLEAR" CALL IS FOR DOMESTIC PEACE. "THAT'S THE MESSAGE FOR THE CANDIDATES IN THE FUTURE," HE DECLARED.

"THE MESSAGE OF THE FUTURE"? MR. PRESIDENT

To Be Equal

Police power

One major problem this country must face up to before it is too late is the growing militancy of its police.

A study group of the National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence recently warned that "the present police militancy seems to have exceeded reasonable bounds." The report went on to say that the police had become a "self-conscious, independent political power" which sometimes "rivals even duly elected officials in influence."

Police excesses against Negroes and other minorities are well known, indeed, the public outcry against them may have lessened their frequency. But any minority can become a target, and now long-haired hippies and student activists are feeling the brunt of intolerance.

At Berkeley, a peaceful demonstration was broken up by a helicopter that sprayed the area with tear gas while exits were being administered are fearful of calling in the police because of past instances of overreaction on the part of officers that led to brutal treatment of students and faculty alike.

Part of the problem, the Commission's report indicates, is that far too many policemen get hung up on their own "law and order" rhetoric.

Law and order are necessary, but when "justice" isn't part of the formula, police state repression sets in. Demonstrations against injustices and public acts to symbolize the wrongs in our society are guaranteed to a free people by the Constitutional mandate for free speech.

It's not the job of the police to stifle dissent and uphold the status quo. Policemen, like other civil servants, are supposed to be neutral on public issues and non-political.

But the evidence indicates that policemen are getting more involved in political activity—and right-wing activity at that. In recent weeks some obviously limited candidates have been elected mayor of their cities thanks to organized police electioneering. They ran on the slippery law and order theme, with some subtle racism thrown in for good measure. And who can forget the visible support given George Wallace last year by some policemen.

Any armed group like the army or the police contains a threat to liberties if it is allowed to become involved in civilian politics. If the cities aren't to be threatened with political "coups" the police will have to return to their traditional non-political role.

They certainly have legitimate grievances. The report said: "We find that the policemen in America is overworked, undereducated." A major effort should be made to upgrade policemen and make their procession more attractive for younger people.

Certainly, better educated police forces would not be so prone to see "outside agitators" behind every campus demonstration or civil rights picket line. The Commission's report said one cause of growing militancy was the constant propaganda they receive, including some from the federal government, that encourages them to see international conspiracy behind demands for social reforms.

A society that tolerates excessive police force, allows its policemen to become a reactionary political power bloc, and, as in some recent instances freely acquiesces to police crimes and excessive brutality, is a society doomed to lose its freedoms.

The police need the resources to do their legitimate job—combating crime effectively.

They need higher salary scales and better training. They need to be fully representative of the communities they serve, and that means enrolling a proportionate number of Negroes and other minorities. And they need better cooperation from the community in identifying and stopping law breakers.

But one thing they don't need and must not be allowed to have, is political power and influence that is reserved to civilians in a democracy.

arrested, it's police brutality. Regardless of how long and loud a Negro shouts that he wants to be equal to the white race he will never accomplish anything.

Equality is not handed out on a silver platter. It has to be merited.

The Negro agrees that his education is inferior to the white race, yet he wants to be accepted in the white schools and teach their children.

Noah had three sons. They were not equal and didn't feel bad about it. I have three children. They are employed by white businesses and they are not trying to be equal. They are only giving the company an honest day's work.

Yes, Mr. M.H., I pay a first class price for groceries and even if I have to go to a shopping center five miles away, that is where I will be going to get first class service.

The Blacks have a right to call themselves by any name they choose, but they can't force it on anyone else.

Not even one percent of the Negro race is going to be controlled by them.

According to your erroneous ideas, you need to do some reading of other men's ideas. The countries of Africa have let the so-called Afro-Americans know there are no such things as Afro-Americans and they are not welcomed in Africa, even as visi-

Voice From The Gallery

by ANDREW W. RAMSEY

The more he changes the more he is the same Nixon

The wave of indignation which ran through the ranks of Negroes and liberals on the occasion of the announcement that the Nixon administration had decided to go slow on the integration of schools indicated that those trusting souls had concluded that the occupant of 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, Washington, D.C. had changed.

It was common knowledge that on the eve of his nomination in Miami, Richard Milhous Nixon was playing footsie with former Dixiecrat and now Republican demagogic bigot, J. Strom Thurman, and that this throwback to the early Nineteenth Century had practically hand-picked the unknown Spiro Agnew as Mr. Nixon's running mate.

Mr. Nixon had decided during the campaign that Mr. Nixon had decided to trade off possible Negro support for the support of the states of the late Confederacy.

Nor was the surprise too great when after several months in the presidency, Nixon had made very few significant Negro appointments. Negro Republicans consoled themselves by saying that political parties do not do favors—they pay debts and that Mr. Nixon owed nothing to the nation's twenty million Negroes.

That alibi put these Negroes in the position of endorsing a position that places political expediency over human considerations. That is a philosophy that seems to indicate that Mr. Nixon was elected as president only of white Americans, but any true believer in the democratic process will argue that any man elected to public office in America is elected to serve all of his constituents without regard to how they voted.

There is nothing in the past record of pronouncements of Mr. Nixon that would give one an inkling that he would not act as he did act. He went along with those whites who think that fifteen years is too short a time to comply with the 1954 Supreme Court Decision in Brown v. The Board of Education.

The fact that less than one per cent of the schools in the South have been desegregated in that time and that the record in the North has not been very commendable would have caused a man of high principle to step up rather than slow down the process of democratization of the nation's schools and of slowing the trend toward racial isolation in our land.

It is now evident that Mr. Nixon is a man of his word—he gave his word to the bigots and he has given every indication that he is going to keep his word.

As the word went out about the administrations reneging on the fixed deadlines set by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and the Justice Department, the rejoicing was not limited to the South nor to the more backward regions of the North.

There are indications that members of the Indianapolis Board of School Commissioners and members of the advisory committee appointed by the Board to work out details for the integration of the local public schools were very pleased indeed.

The local school government had just renounced the plan of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare for the integration of local schools and particularly Crispus Attucks High School.

They had bowed to the wishes of the woolhats who meeting a few days later crowded the Board room and spouted thinly veiled racism. Many of these woolhats had been placed on the advisory committee and all the Board needed was the announcement from Washington.

Perhaps Mr. Nixon was influenced by the black power advocates who oppose integration and are asking for the privilege of doing their "own thing". We possibly thought that they represented a majority of the Negro citizenry and that out of gratitude they would support his bid for reelection in 1972.

Or he may have not known that the gradualism which he is employing was the very reason for the development of the black separatism and the philosophy espoused by some advocates of black separatism of violence if necessary to accomplish their ends.

But these blacks are turned off and they are more likely to skip going to the polls. Also turned off are the majority of Negroes who do not subscribe to separatism and they will go to the polls to vote against the advocates of this Nixon gradualism.

If Mr. Nixon seems to change between now and 1972, it will mean nothing for his record tells us that the more he changes the more he remains the same.

God chooses a people

PRINTED TEXT: Gen. 12:1-3, 7, 17:1-8, 21:1-5; 22:15-19.

LESSON SCRIPTURES: Gen. 12:1-10, 15, 17:1-21; 18:13; 14:21:1-5; 22:15-19; Heb. 11:8-19; Romans 9-11; Gal. 3.

MOTTO TEXT: Gen. 12:2.

We shall continue our adventure on God this week in God's choice of a people and people were in the loins and the life line of Abraham and Sarah. Look at the lesson this way please: I. A Man Called Out (Gen. 12:1-9). II. Turn Your Gratitude Into Cash (Gen. 14:18-22; Heb. 7). III. Trust and Obey (Gen. 17:1-21). IV. God Always Provides (Gen. 22:1-15).

A MAN CALLED OUT. Abraham was a sun worshipper in Ur of the Chaldees and he felt the inner urge to leave this idol worshipers and hit a new trail of his own of the Guiding of a God that could not be felt by the outer senses of sight, smell, taste or hearing but only by an inner guidance that we call conscience.

He was the first of record at that time to believe that God is Spirit, and they that worship Him must worship Him in spirit and in truth. So he left home, went over 500 miles to worship God as he believed.

Have you been called out from those you think of as not sincere worshipers of God? Is there a point where you have to break with your best friends on right and wrong? Then you have a Godly call to that extent. No you do not have to be cruel but this is what a church membership means at depth in all churches.

TURN YOUR GRATITUDE INTO CASH. Yes this is in essence and grateful to God so when he met his priest Melchizedek he gave him a 10th of all (Gen.

14:18-22). His grandson Jacob continued the habit. Why not you? Read Mal. 3:8-10; Matt. 23:23; Heb. 7.

TRUST AND OBEY. What God was promising was a just too much for Abraham and Sarah to believe and most of God's accomplishments are to us. So: When we walk with the Lord in the light of His love What a glory He shines on the way

When we do His good will He abides with us still And with those Who will trust and obey THE LORD WILL PROVIDE. At the burning bush, Isaac said for each a sacrifice is brought. Hear we say anew:

Oh the Lord will provide The Lord will provide In some way or another The Lord will provide.

Old Taylor Presents: Ingenious Americans

Charles Richard Drew (1905-1950)
He found a way to save lives by saving blood.
When someone needs a couple of pints of blood for a transfusion, his doctor simply telephones the local blood bank, and the proper type and quantity will be there in minutes. We take this for granted. But what most of us don't realize is that only twenty-five years ago this simple phone call was impossible. It was not until 1941 that Dr. Charles Drew, then director of the British Blood Plasma Project, introduced the revolutionary idea of a central depository for blood—a blood bank. Drew's next step was to improve the methods of preserving blood. And, as the first director of the American Red Cross Blood Bank, he supplied much needed plasma to the United States Armed Forces. But it was not only in the banking of blood that Dr. Drew made his mark. In the 1930's, as a professor and head of surgery at Howard University Medical School, Dr. Drew trained and encouraged hundreds of young doctors. Under his strong and inspired leadership, the enrollment at Howard swelled. Shortly after the war, Dr. Drew was named Surgical Consultant for the United States Army. Then, a year later, his career was brought to an abrupt halt by his untimely death in an automobile accident. Dr. Charles Drew left an enduring mark in many fields. He had been an outstanding athlete and coach, a magnetic speaker, an inspiring teacher and dynamic administrator, a gifted scientist and, above all, a skilled surgeon. Memorials and monuments are unnecessary, for that simple phone call serves as a constant reminder of the momentous contributions Dr. Charles Richard Drew made to the world.

ENTERTAINMENT GIANT — Frederick (Shorty) Long, the Motown recording star who stood only five-feet and one-inch, is dead at the age of 29. The dynamically talented recording artist who penned such tunes as "Devil With The Blue Dress On," "Fuction At The Junction," and "Here Comes The Judge," drowned Sunday, June 29 in the Detroit River when his small boat capsized off Sandwich Island, Ontario. Shorty sang with the vibrancy of his true Baptist "upbringing," and played piano, organ, drums and harmonica. (Motown Photo)

Wesleyan Little All-American who averaged eight points as a rookie with the ABA Miami Floridians the past season.

"When Hank comes to play," said the star of Wesleyan's 1966 and 1968 College Division championships, "he's the greatest player I've ever seen. He's a showman, has some Globetrotter in him, and goes hard about 35 minutes (out of 48) a game. "I don't think anybody can stop him in the NBA or anywhere else."

Thornton's comments become significant in light of the fact Hawkins was slowed by injury much of last season. In 1967-68, when he was healthy, Hawkins won the ABA scoring championship with 26.8 points per game and led Pittsburgh to the league crown. He shot 52.1 per cent from the field, averaged 13.5 rebounds and 4.5 assists.

A 6-foot-8 schoolboy star at Boys High in Brooklyn, N.W. Hawkins enrolled at Iowa in 1960 but was forced to leave within a year. He allegedly introduced New York area collegians to gamblers, and only recently did the NBA lift a lifetime ban.

"I say he's better than Rick Barry because he can do it all," Thornton said. "He rebounds, he plays defense, he scores as much as he wants. Barry is a great offensive player, but he doesn't do that much on defense, and rebounding."

Phoenix plans to play Hawkins at forward with 6-foot-10 rookie Neal Walk of Florida in the pivot. Thornton, who frequently plays against Walk in off-season workouts, thinks the Hawk is best at center.

Ashe, Pasarell, and Smith are Stanley R. Smith, and Robert C. Lutz, will continue to play tennis, but as Ashe said, only as "independent professionals," in tournament of their choice.

Ashe said he expected to play tennis about seven months of the year, giving the rest of his time to the new insurance company which will be called First Service Insurance agency and will have its headquarters in Richmond.

The agency will deal exclusively with Fidelity Bankers Life Insurance Company of Richmond and the Central National Insurance group of Omaha, both subsidiaries of the Fidelity corporation in Richmond.

"We are novices at insurance, but everybody has to start sometime," Ashe said.

He said he hoped that the combination of insurance and tennis would in a few years be more productive financially than the half million dollar contract he turned down to play year round professional tennis.

"Also, I will keep by independence, which is very precious to me," he said.

Ashe said the agency at the beginning will seek its first customers among the seven million Americans who play tennis and who sponsor tennis tournaments.

baseball and track. At 5-7, 150 pounds he was on his way to proving that a big heart counts more than a big chest measurement.

His career has spanned service as an Olympic track coach, Pan American Games track manager, Olympic selection official, and head coaching jobs in football, baseball, basketball, and track.

As a bright 22-year-old college graduate with a reputation for being three times tougher than his size, Lewis got his first job at Alabama State College where he coached football, basketball and track. His first call for football brought candidates who were older than he was, but he consistently molded winning teams.

"Country" credits an old yellow school bus for his football success at Alabama State. "I'd head that old bus north every summer and I knew where the horses were, the ones I wanted for my kind of football," he recalls. Criss - crossing the midwest and stopping in hamlets where local stars lived, Lewis filled his bus with top flight Negro football talent.

"We sould eat sandwiches out of paper bags and sleep in the bus parked at the side of the road," he says.

In the years before major colleges were ready to admit black athletes in numbers, "Country" took advantage of their attitude and won football games with talent 20 years later would draw offers from the nation's and we won." None of Lewis' teams were ever shut out, and he says he never saw a team he couldn't score upon.

When he dropped the head football job in 1957 to become athletic director, national organizations began bidding for his time. He was appointed to the NCAA Track and Field Rules Committee, and he also serves with the national AAU track program.

In the summer of 1967 he managed the track section of the Pan-American Games at Winnipeg, Canada. Last fall, he helped prepare America's Olympic track team for the Mexico City games.

As athletic director, "Country" built the Marauders' program to its full capacity of seven sports, and initiated major improvements in the football stadium and outdoor sports areas.

His leadership provided a coaching atmosphere in which nine Central State athletes were selected as All-Americans in seven different sports, and the basketball and cross-country both won two national titles.

An outlook of life supported by the many athletic honors that have come his way lets "Country" minimize the effects of the times his players couldn't ride or eat or sleep where they wished. And there was the instance in 1951 when their plane to the east coast was forced to land in Greensboro, N.C., and they were told by airport officials that they could not set foot on the ground.

Always a winner, "Country" says that his greatest thrills over the years has not been his championship football teams, but rather the steady stream of former athletes who come to visit him and credit sports for their college education and a start on a successful life.

Their numbers are in the thousands; forty-five years full of athletes, make a long, long line.

When "I" formation football replaced the single-wing, "Country" mastered the techniques so thoroughly he was on the road every summer until he retired from football in 1957 talking at clinics about the possibilities of the new attack.

College and professional scouts made Central State's football camp a regular stop each year to see what Lewis was doing with his offense. Sid Gillman, now head coach of the San Diego Chargers, but then at the University of Cincinnati, took up residence each year at CSU to study under Lewis.

"Country" shrugs off the reputation he acquired as a "rock me" type football coach. "We had discipline," he says. "We looked like a football team,

DETROIT, MICH. 48211

Ruth is supreme in this as in so many other respects. He did it four times — 59 in 1921, and 54 in 1920 and 1928 in addition to his 60. Jimmy Foxx hit 58 for the Philadelphia Athletics in 1932 and 50 for the Boston Red Sox in 1938, the same year that Greenberg hit 58 for the Detroit Tigers.

Foxx and Greenberg came closest to catching Ruth before Maris had his one big year. (Roger never reached even 40 in any other season.)

Mickey Mantle hit 54 the year Maris hit 61, and also hit 52 in 1956. After Wilson, the only National Leaguers to reach that category were Ralph Kiner and Willie Mays, twice each, and Johnny Mize. Kiner hit 54, the second-best National League performance, in 1949 after tying with Mize at 51 in 1947. Mays hit 51 in 1955 as a New York Giant and 52 in 1965 as a San Francisco Giant.

The meaning of 50 homers is underlined by the list of sluggers who never reached it: Ted Williams, Lou Gehrig, Joe DiMaggio, Hank Aaron and Harmon Killebrew, to name a few.

The usual way of following this sort of race is to say that Jackson is "so many games ahead" of Ruth's 1927 pace, or Maris's 1961 pace. But this is really misleading, since home runs are hit at irregular intervals. It is more useful to make the comparison in terms of "home runs ahead."

For instance, Jackson had

The new thrust

BY HUERTA C. TRIBELE

Chemistry is paying off for Arthur Smith of Logansport, Ind., the owner and operator of Marvel Chemical Company, formerly called Space Laboratories. He has developed within the past five years over 100 individual chemical specialties.

Smith manufactures dozens of household items such as waterless hand cleaner, auto wash and wax, spray and wipe cleaners, industrial and household detergents, rug and upholstery cleaner permanent anti-freeze, furniture polish, liquid chlorine bleach, ball point ink remover, etc. Of his newest products is "Type-Rite," a ribbon re-ener guaranteed to triple 33 home runs after 72 games. When Ruth had played 72 games, he had 25, so Jackson was "eight homers ahead" of Ruth's pace. He was, at that point, six homers ahead of Maris.

In all these cases, we ignore the number of games actually played by the individual and use the team's game number on the schedule, because what we really want to know is how many more opportunities the man will have to add to his total.

If he missed some games (as McCovey has missed six so far this season,) he can never get them back. What the table really says is that McCovey had 26 home runs with 74 games used up, while Wilson had only 23 home runs with 74 games in 1930.

the performance of ordinary typewriter ribbons. This offers substantial savings in ordinary typewriter maintenance expenses.

Also included among Smith's numerous specialties are various protein base cosmetic items including shampoos, lotions, hair straightener and permanent solutions for beauty salons. One of these products has been displayed in West Germany and at the United States Embassy in Lome, Togo, Portuguese East Africa during an American Trade Fair.

This interest in the field of chemical products was prompted by his past association with two chemist friends. A civil service employee of over 20 years, the chemical product specialist and his family have lived in St. Louis, Ogden, Utah, Tacoma, Washington, Newark, Ohio and Peru, Ind. during his assignments. He and his wife, Celia, who shares an interest in Marvel Chemical Company, have five children.

Mr. Smith is determined to do something worthwhile to do after his civil service retirement. Though he is without a building, his operations have been registered with the Indiana State Board of Health.

The products are developed from materials and formulas supplied by such chemical companies as Dow, Atlas, Swift, Evans Cosmetics, Stephan and others.

The resulting by-products duplicate and in many instances are said to excel highly advertised items already on the market. He has successfully developed original formulas and they have been adopted by his chemical suppliers.

The Smiths have had their share of problems. A low bid on a government contract for a solvent type detergent was at one time under consideration by Federal authorities. Even though the formula and materials used in the product met government specifications before its production, the bid was rejected.

The reasons were due to the detergent not being a stock Marvel Chemical Co. product and for lack of a particular type of test equipment. Due to this experience, the Smiths are attempting to secure equipment necessary to meet the specific and technical requirements involved in such contracts.

However, Mr. Smith has two insecticides and a disinfectant registered with the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Also, recently his waterless hand cleaner is starting to develop a market. Two large corporations, one in Indianapolis and one in Crawfordsville, are using this product.

This product is not only competitive in price to other leading hand cleaners, but is unique because it is a cosmetic type. In fact, it has the pleasant smell of a skin lotion. It will remove grease, oil, paint, crayon marks from floors, walls and doesn't remove the natural oil from your skin. This is ideal for household use, painters, car mechanics, etc.

Mr. Smith is happy with the success of this product so far but would like for more people and companies to buy it.

He welcomes the opportunity to show his products and will send samples upon re-

Flanagan, Charles Dearing, school board member; Robert Hewlett, assistant state superintendent of public instruction; Zebedee Christian School Board member; State Representative Robert Humphrey; Rev. Edward Foggs, Tom Garrison, assistant state director of vocational education, and David Middleton, industrial coordinator for Anderson schools.

The building which will house up to $1 million worth of equipment and furnishings will either serve 800 students in a single shift or 2,400 in a nine-hour operating day from three counties in this area.

In addition to Wells and Elbert, other school heads here for the groundbreaking were superintendents George Gleen, Eastern Hancock; Dale Prough, Central Metropolitan Madison County, and Thomas Thomas, Alexandria-Monroe Schools.

Others attending were representatives of labor organizations, chamber of commerce and industry.

For the first time in more than a year, the All American Community Team (ACT) failed to hold a monthly "Town Hall meeting."

ACT will conduct its next regular meeting Monday, July 21, with the Madison County League of Women Voters conducting the program.

J. Arnold Jones, ACT chairman, said that the regular June program was postponed because of the Anderson College commencement Monday, June 16.

The June meeting was rescheduled for a later date but the guest speaker, Willard Ransome, a prominent black Indianapolis attorney, was unable to attend because of a previous commitment. He has been rescheduled for the Monday, August 18 Town Hall Meeting.

"Town Hall" meetings are normally at the YWCA the third Monday of each month and are open to the public.

"We became more aware of the youth movement within the national structure of the YMCA," said John Gibson, local Y "Outreach" director. "We saw young people in turmoil."

Gibson was one of 17 Anderson delegates who attended the four-day YMCA national convention in St. Louis.

This was the first national YMCA confab in history which young people were allowed to attend. In the past, only members of local boards of directors could be present at the sessions.

A total of 5,300 delegates were involved in the conference and more than 1,000 of them were young people.

Another young delegate, Fred Donaldson, remarked, "We discovered that we can play a greater role in decision making in the YMCA."

In a convention urging involvement with the social problems confronting the country today, delegates heard Mayor Carl B. Stokes of Cleveland.

Stokes urged the YMCA to organize youth now "pulling together the national youth serving organizations such as Boy Scouts, Boys Clubs, the Jewish Community Centers and the Catholic Youth Organizations into a program that will look to young people for its ideas and specific activities but will be financed by a national drive among all the additional supporters of youth."

Proceeding Stokes, a group from the YMCA student caucus, in a last minute arrangement with Y leaders, presented what they termed a "guerilla theatre."

The various acts portrayed the many problems that the youth of America are challenging — Vietnam War, draft, racism and the power structure. These and other acts of the theatre were intended to make convention delegates more aware of the problems with which young persons today are concerned.

In two morning general sessions delegates were shown filmed confrontation of YMCA leaders and youth episodes focusing on such problems as youth representation of boards and YMCA action in the urban crisis and other controversial issues.

Youth attending representing the local YMCA included John Gibson, Fred Donaldson, Larry Burns, Mary Watson, Minnie Watson, Tim East and James Rebhorn.

Also LaJayne Hackney, Jacqueline Faulkner, Ervin Wright, Tonda Wrethamer, Carla Jackson and Eddie Riddle.

Officials of the Anderson Y in attendance were P.E. Bardley, president of the board of directors; William Haffinan, executive secretary, and Knox Goble, youth executive director.

A training program on small business development and management in underdeveloped areas has been scheduled at the Allen Chapel Terrace Estate.

The session are open to all persons interested in either starting a new business or expanding an existing small business.

The training course is part of a proposal on Human Relations in Action submitted by Allen Chapel Terrace Estate to George Romney, Secretary of Housing and Urban Development earlier this year. The Small Business Development Training Program is being coordinated by Odail Thorne of Allen Chapel AME Church with members of the Chamber of Commerce headed by Frank Woschitz and instructors from Anderson College headed by Dr. Delwin Brown.

Gear programs toward troubled youth: Bell

It is the hope of Avis Bell, a recent appointee to the Governor's Youth Council, that the group gear its program toward the youths that are troubled.

Mr. Bell was appointed to the Council by Gov. Edgar Whitcomb who has indicated his interest and support for the state's youth.

The director of neighborhood development for Model Cities, Mr. Bell expressed the desire that the programs and plans of the Council be geared toward the group of youth bothered by problems of society and not so much the youth group that will be successful.

"We must work with the youth having problems and gear our plans for their immediate need. The overall youth system should not be established for the particular system in power now," Mr. Bell stated.

He said he is glad the Council is being active again and thinks it will be an asset to the present administration providing the plans and programs are functional and can be applicable to youth concerned.

The 27-year-old Council member is a graduate of Shortridge High School. He attended Central State University and Butler University. An active member of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, he is affiliated with Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity, the Black Activists Political Organization and Northside New Era Baptist Church.

Your professional beautician knows the answer...

Is peroxide needed to color unwanted gray hair?

Hair care and beauty experts know that the first traces of gray hair—and even slight fading of natural color after chemical relaxing—can dull a woman's appearance and make her look older than she feels. While most women hate these premature aging effects, many are hesitant about using permanent peroxide haircoloring which may change the natural hair color while coloring gray.

Professionally-trained hairdressers know the importance of their customers' preferences when unwanted gray becomes a problem. These experts also know that Clairol created semi-permanent Loving Care® hair color lotion without peroxide... to color only the gray without changing the natural shade. They also find Loving Care blends back color faded by chemical processing. Because of its mildness, Loving Care maintains healthy looking hair and lasts through a month of shampoos.

Whatever a woman's reason for wanting Loving Care for her hair, she is always wise to consult a professional beautician. Hairdressers are equipped with a family of fine Clairol products and the training to promise each patron the loveliest and most personalized haircoloring effects every time she visits her salon. If you dislike gray, and want no peroxide, why not ask your beautician to glamorize it with Loving Care?

crimination, said Dean Clark, as much as by "lack of an active, aggressive program to combat it."

Dr. James Weigand, associate professor of science education and co-executive secretary of the school's Human Relations Commission,

WERE YOU THERE? Were you there May 9, 1968? This was the scene last year during a rally in support of Operation Breadbasket. This year's rally will be held Sunday at 2:30 p.m., at CTH Watkins Park, 24th at Northwestern. (See story) outlined the plans the school has, plans ambitious to the point of 32 memos sent out by Dean Clark to implement the recommendations of the school's Policy Council, in many cases with mandatory dates assigned for completion.

The School of Education, Dr. Weigand said, has created a joint student-faculty committee on discriminatory practices, and task forces on the following: services to schools, curriculum, faculty recruitment, research and development, student recruitment, student teacher placement, and teacher placement. All emphasize the problems of the blacks, but also attack the problems of other minorities.

"There is now a genuine concern for hiring black faculty members, for recruiting black students, for employing black staff members, and for financially supporting black students on campus," said Dean Clark.

The School of Education will coordinate its program with Rozelle Boys, assistant dean of the Junior (freshman) Division; Dr. John B. Joyner, director of the I.U. Center for Human Relations and associate dean for student personnel; and with representatives of the University's Afro-American Studies and Urban Studies Area Programs, and the Midwest Equal Opportunity Program.

The Human Relations Commission will have five graduate assistants, three half-time personnel, one half-time secretary, and one "preferably black" consultant on student recruitment and other problems in the inner city, Dean Clark stated.

The recommendations provide for at least one graduate student and one undergraduate student on all task forces. For example, the committee on discriminatory practices will have four student members - two graduate and two undergraduate - and three faculty members.

The task forces will meet together as an executive committee at least once per academic semester.

A School of Education policy statement is being drafted, defining what constitutes discrimination against students and student teachers. By Nov. 1, the school's Policy Council is to create a labor union type grievance procedure of appeals for students who feel they have been discriminated against.

The School of Education also is considering the creation of two more courses to be offered to prospective teachers - Teaching in the Inner City, and Sociology of Urban Education.

The school plans to have its faculty institute a campaign of letter writing to alumni, both through individual alumni and the I.U. Alumni Association, informing them of minority problems and soliciting means of financial support for students.

The School of Education's Department of Guidance and Counseling will structure a series of meetings to "increase the awareness" of faculty with regard to minority problems.

The Office of Research and Development will be responsible for providing for the compilation and dissemination of bibliographies on minority problems, to be made available to interested students and others.

Dean Clark also has set a Jan. 1 date for creation of policies with regard to student teacher placement.

Within the broad outline of the School of Education's plans, there is a breakdown into recommendations for the various task forces. For example, with regard to recruitment of black faculty and staff, anticipated openings for both the Bloomington campus and the regional campuses will be consolidated into a composite list, complete with job locations, salaries, and job descriptions.

"When outstanding candidates are encountered whose skills and competencies lie outside the positions listed, an effort should be made (as faculty and administrators) to create new positions or modify existing positions to increase the probability of attracting those candidates," Dean Clark stated.

In addition, administrators will contact placement bureaus throughout the country to keep records of potential candidates.

"We are part of the society at large," said Dr. Weigand. "These are things that had to be done."

on another investigation noticed the parked car near the ambulance entrance with a man slumped in the seat.

Shortly after Billups' body was discovered Det. Sgt. Albert Taylor arrested Ernest Graham 28, 536 Sutherland, at 1342 W. 18th, where the fatal altercation occurred, on a preliminary charge of murder.

Mrs. Vera Kirksey, 34, who had formerly dated Billups but had currently been going with Graham lives at the 18th street address.

While homicide detectives were conducting an investigation at General Hospital in an attempt to learn how the Billups' body had been transported to the hospital, a woman who identified herself as Mrs. Annie Edwards, 47, 2241 Northwestern, came to the hospital and inquired about Billups.

When questioned by detectives, Mrs. Edwards said her daughter (Mrs. Kirksey) had come to her home and told her she had witnessed a fight between the victim and Graham.

Sgt. Taylor said he questioned Mrs. Kirksey concerning the murder at her mother's home before going to the 18th Street address to recover any possible evidence.

"When we arrived at the murder scene we found a man seated in the house who admitted being Ernest Graham and we placed him under arrest on the murder charge.

When questioned about the murder, Sgt. Taylor quoted Graham as remarking, "We had a fist fight and the other man lost."

In a statement to the homicide officers, Mrs. Kirksey said both Graham and Billups had been visiting her home early Friday but both had left separately.

She said Billups returned a short time later with some beer. According to Mrs. Kirksey, Graham came back to the house and walked to the refrigerator and took out a can of the beer.

Billups objected, Mrs. Kirksey related, and the two men became engaged in an argument.

The quarrel erupted into a fight and the younger man knocked the victim down, kicked him, beat him with a shotgun then stabbed him with a screw driver, a pair of scissors and a two-prong fork.

Sgt. Taylor said Mrs. Kirksey told how Graham beat Billups unmercifully inside the house, then forced him to go outside where he again struck him repeatedly with the shotgun and kicked him countless times.

Acting as though he was crazed, Mrs. Kirksey added, Graham then drug Billups bruised and bloodied form back into the house and proceeded to beat him even more.

"He just kept beating him until he quit moving," the horrified woman continued.

Mrs. Kirksey told the detectives she summoned a taxi to take Billups to the hospital but Graham had sent the cab away remarking, "He doesn't need a cab."

Mrs. Kirksey said Graham left Billups lying on the floor for more than an hour - then picked him up, put him in his own (the victim's) car and drove off.

Sgt. Taylor said Graham evidently drove the car to the hospital ambulance entrance then got out and left.

Sgt. Taylor said the victim's body bore numerous marks resulting from a two-prong fork being raked across his face and body. A screwdriver had been driven through his arm.

Graham waived his right to a preliminary hearing when he appeared in municipal court Saturday, the case pending against him was bound over to the Marion County Grand Jury. He was ordered held without bond in the county jail.

3 defendants in N.J. riot freed of gun charges

NEWARK, N.J. -- A sequel to the July 1967 rioting here LePol Jones poet and playwright and two codefendants were acquitted last weekend in a retrial on charges of possessing guns during the riot.

After a change of venue Jones, Barry Wynn, age 24, actor and Charles McCray, age 34, accountant, all of this city, were convicted in November 1967, on the same charges, at Morristown.

The New Jersey Supreme Court overturned the verdict, following a plea by counsel for the defendants that they were framed.

Arthur W. Spottswood, chairman of the board of directors, assailed the Administration in his keynote address.

"The Nixon Administration," he charged, "is still not satisfied that the hocus pocus surrounding the Voting Rights Act which is due to expire next year."

Bishop Spottswood was also critical of a measure pending in Congress which would cut the tax exempt status of foundations giving funds to organizations conducting voter registration campaigns.

"They have included some cute language which means one thing and says another, but effect will be to cut the Negro voters' throat," Bishop Spottswood said.

"In its wild desire to get at the foundations, Congress is stomping Negro voters, not just breaking their fingers, but beating out their brains. These are samples of how law and order government works," he added.

An emergency resolution unanimously adopted at the convention strongly urged President Nixon to "exercise every authohate and mistreatment and let's make Fayette a great place to live."

Non-black faces were scarce among the hundreds who jammed the rear parking lot of city hall. No consensus of the town whites has been registered but all 16 members of city hall's white staff resigned.

Last spring, Evers defeated the incumbent mayor, R.J. Allen, by 386 to 255 and carried an all black Board of Aldermen to victory with him.

Especially noticeable among whites present were Ramsey Clark, former attorney general and John Doar and Burke Marshall, former assistant attorney general for civil rights, all of whom had played a part in the 1965 Voting Rights Act, which put enough Negro names on the registration books to bring about the election of a black government here.

Black spokesmen on hand included Whitney M. Young Jr., of the Urban League, Julian Bond, the Georgia legislator, Mayor Carl B. Stokes, of Cleveland, and John Lewis, former head of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee.

The "Star Spangled Banner" was sung by one of the nation's most beautiful voices, Miss Leatyne Price, the Mississippi-born Metropolitan Opera star.

During the inauguration ball that night at city auditorium, the jam-packed crowd of 900 heard Evers acknowledge telegrams from America's leading citizens.

They included: President Nixon: "I want you to know my thoughts are with you."

Former President Lyndon B. Johnson: "You experienced the thrill of democracy."

Former Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey: "I know you will serve with great distinction."

riety of his office to strengthen not weaken, HEW desegregation requirements and to exercise the full authority of his office to ensure swift and firm compliance with the law of the land. Anything less would be an invitation to disaster."

The full text of the resolution was sent to the President and to Nixon and HEW Secretary Robert H. Finch.

Herbert Hill, the NAACP director of labor programs, minced no words in assailing the failure of the Administration "to enforce Federal executive orders as related to discrimination in employment." "The inaction of the government, he charged, "is a classic example of administration nullification of civil rights laws and executive orders."

"The Administration's offering is not too little it is nothing," Wilkins told newsmen. "It is not late, it is far, far too late. It is hostile. It is sickening."

Joining Mr. Wilkins in the new conference was Aaron Henry, president of the Mississippi State NAACP, and Charles Evers, the Association's Mississippi field director who was inaugurated Monday as the first Negro mayor of an interracial Mississippi town since the Reconstruction era.

Both blasted the Administration's policies.

Mr. Henry said the government's announcement "shattered Mississippi Negroes' faith in the Federal government as an ally in the fight against discrimination and segregation."

Mayor Evers said the new policy "was very disturbing in that it could be used by black extremists in showing the government as indifferent to orderly protest."

As the convention drew to a close, the board of directors approved a statement drafted by an ad hoc committee which read:

"It is with bitter disappointment, deep regret, and utter dismay that we note that President Nixon and his chief law enforcement officer (Atty. Gen. Mitchell), though each proclaims himself an advocate of law and order, have effected an unlawful and disorderly retreat where challenged by those whose only desire is perpetual racial segregation in our public schools," the statement asserted.

"The abandonment of the firm and fixed deadline of September, 1969, embodied in the guidelines for integration of the public schools set by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare is a direct insult to our courts and has the distinct odor of the musty coin of political payoff."

Among other proposals, the statement called upon NAACP branches to "continue to exert pressure for disestablishment of the dual public school system without further delay. Mr. Nixon must not be allowed to lead soldiers away from the fight for freedom. His retreat must be as solitary and lonely as we can make it."

Attacked in the vicinity of his home was Egbert Flynn, 21, 2222 S. Perkins. Flynn said around 12:15 a.m. five youths, all in their late teens and early 20's, accosted him and took his money.

Burglars swept through the house of Mrs. Charlyne Smith, 34, 3907 Guilford and came up with a haul that included currency and jewelry.

The Northsider said she left home around 10 a.m. Thursday, July 3 and returned two hours later to discover a side door had been forced open and her home ransacked.

She came up with the following list of missing items:

$40 in currency, a man's ring valued at $2,000, another man's ring valued at $1,000, $25 in Indian Head nickels and $15 in silver dollars.

Clothing and a television set were reported missing during a break-in at the home of Mrs. Louise Townsend, 35, 3335 N. Tacoma.

Returning home from work Sunday night she found a large portion of her wardrobe along with a portable television set valued at $70 gone.

Entrance was apparently gained through a window from which the screen had been torn.

Otis Thomas, 27, 927 W. 31st, is minus two pistols following a burglary at his apartment.

He reported Sunday that he returned home around 4 p.m. and noticed his door had been forced open. A check of his belongings revealed that two .38-caliber pistols were missing.

"The evidence than Jensen is using is weighted," said Stewart, "but most linguists know that the differences in performances are due mostly to language and cultural differences."

To bolster his own theory, Stewart and several other linguists have started a project to administer intelligence tests to black pupils in Philadelphia, both in dialect and in standard English. The scientists want to compare the pupils' performances each way.

"We believe that these inner city kids will do better when they can take the test in dialect, something they understand, and when the tests

Stewart said that some of the misunderstanding that surrounds the study of language is due to white liberals and middle class Negroes.

"This may be a very convenient tactic which you choose to use; however, it is dishonest and vicious to proceed in this manner..."

The party's newspaper recently stopped listing Carmichael as its prime minister and in keeping with some comment, it reported that he had been ejected already from the party.

According to the officers Graves and the second youth later identified as Wayman D. Wilson, also 18, 905 N. Talbot, jumped from the wrecked automobile and Graves fled south on Clifton and then west in a nearby alley with Douglas in pursuit.

In a report filed at police headquarters after the shooting, Douglas said he "aimed low" and fired at Graves with a .12-gauge shotgun from about 150 feet after the youth had ignored an order to "halt."

cal chairman of SCLC, said: "We appeal to all segments of the community—labor, business, church, youth, black moderate, militant, governmental official, ghetto residents—to join us in a common task, to demonstrate that people of good will, regardless of differences, are determined to implement massive programs through non-violent and peaceful means to end poverty and racism in our society."

Rev. Brown emphasized that this rally is but a first step. A concerted action program will follow with appearances before welfare and trustee boards, meetings with state legislators, and specific measures to combat the problems of welfare, housing employment and education that breed and perpetuate poverty.

The march will dramatize reaffirmation of will and commitment to eradicate poverty—the most serious threat to the nation's stability, according to Rev. Brown. Co-operating in the effort are SCLC, the Black Coalition, Black Radical Action Project, NAACP Youth League, Dignity Unlimited, Welfare Rights Organization, and the Black Liberation.

Mayor Richard G. Lugar has consented to extend greetings. National speakers will include C. T. Vivian of Chicago, Ill., and Wyatt T. Walker of New York, both SCLC officials. Rev. Ralph D. Abernathy, president of SCLC, has been extended an invitation, as has Black Gary Mayor Richard G. Hatcher.

Others scheduled to speak include Rudolph Clay of Gary, chairman of the economic arm of the Viscounts; Gordon Alexander of Washington, D.C., special legislative assistant for urban affairs to Sen. Birch Bayh; Sam Jones of the Urban League, Max Brydenthall, labor leader, and Beatrice Woods, president of Local 803, State, County and Municipal Employees.

Also Joann Davis and Rosie Malloy of the Welfare Rights Organization, Rev. Arthur Johnson, moderator of the Union District Association; Rev. James Earl King, moderator of the Zion Mission and Education Association; Rev. Melvin Gilton, president of the Baptist Ministers Alliance, and Rev. Rupert Paul of East Chicago, vice-president of the Martin Luther King Baptist State Convention.

Others are Dr. Robert Koenig, Church Federation; Grover Hartman, Indiana Council of Churches; John Fox of the Presbyterian Church, Leroy Hodat of the United Methodist Church, Boniface Hardin of the Catholic Church, Richard Hudson of the Christian Church, and representatives of the Episcopalian Church, United Auto Workers, migrant workers, and NAACP. Many outstanding singers and choirs from the city will provide music.

The march will go from 24th and Northwestern to 26th street, east on 26th to Illinois, north on Illinois to 34th, east on 34th to Meridian, and north on Meridian to the Governor's Mansion.

Participants are expected from throughout the state.

Churches that will serve the "poul food" dinners at 12:30 p.m. are Ebenezer Baptist Church, 1901 N. Harding; Christ Missionary Baptist Church, 1001 Eugene; Pilgrim Baptist Church, 1060 W. 30th; Eastside Baptist Church, 2845 Baltimore; St. John Missionary Baptist Church, 1701 Martindale; Greater St. James Baptist Church, 835 South St. Paul; New Garfield Baptist Church, 2914 E. that "our values are inverted... we cannot go on killing in Viet Nam; we cannot continue to mis-educate our children; we must move the nation from confrontation to reconciliation, and the prime movers are preachers!

"Although we are seeing growing sterility in the ranks and leadership of churchgoers it is now the black preachers who are starting to stir black and white congregations to and to soul into them.

He outlined five steps that must be taken by the nation's clergy for the betterment of all mankind. The clergy must be noted, take a more positive stand for peace; the clergy must develop a new style in politics — choosing the best candidate and working to get him elected.

For purposes of black economic survival, the clergy must become actively involved in new and bold adventures ranging from developing shopping centers to actively encouraging investment clubs.

The nation's spiritual leaders must take a more positive interest in experimental education, especially the development of black studies program relevant to the white community.
